

Luxair partners with Luxembourgish chef Anne Knepper for summer Business Class menus

A refined new onboard dining experience inspired by contemporary Luxembourgish cuisine.

Luxair continues to highlight culinary talent from Luxembourg and the Greater Region by collaborating this summer with Luxembourgish chef Anne Knepper, whose contemporary, ingredient-focused cuisine will shape the airline's Business Class menus.

Throughout the summer season, Business Class passengers can enjoy a selection of menus created by Anne Knepper, designed to bring freshness, balance and flavour to the onboard dining experience.

Served on a rotating basis on flights across Luxair's network, the culinary offer includes breakfast creations as well as cold meals presented as complete menus with a starter, main course and dessert.

Combining simplicity with refinement, the dishes are designed to highlight carefully selected ingredients and natural flavours, while remaining perfectly suited to the unique environment of in-flight service. They bring local and seasonal flavours on board, with ingredients such as local trout, cheese and ham from Luxembourg, as well as creations like smoked trout tartare served with buckwheat salad or a trout-stuffed zucchini flower.

Anne Knepper, Head Chef and Co-founder of Public House in Luxembourg, is known for her modern and accessible culinary style. Her cooking is guided by quality ingredients, seasonal inspiration and balanced, contemporary flavours. “Every dish begins with the ingredient,” says Anne Knepper. “For this collaboration with Luxair, I wanted to create menus that feel fresh, balanced and elegant, offering passengers a memorable culinary moment as part of their journey.”

“We are always looking for new ways to enhance the experience we offer our Business Class customers,” says Thomas Fischer, Chief Commercial Officer at Luxair. “With Anne Knepper, we have found a chef whose modern approach and strong sense for flavour bring fresh momentum to our onboard dining.
