Elvinger Hoss Prussen welcomes Benjamin Marthoz as Counsel

Elvinger Hoss Prussen announces the arrival of Benjamin Marthoz as Counsel in its General Litigation and Administrative Litigation teams, effective 9 November 2026.

Benjamin has gained extensive experience at various Luxembourg law firms since being admitted to the Luxembourg Bar in 2005.

He specialises in administrative, commercial and civil litigation, and has particular expertise in administrative law matters like public procurement, public contracts and urban planning.

A member of the editorial committee of the Revue luxembourgeoise de droit public, Benjamin is the author of several publications in administrative and civil law, and in recent years has notably drafted the chapters dedicated to Luxembourg in The Government Procurement Review.

He is a member of the administrative law commission of the Luxembourg Bar and currently serves on the boards of directors of the Luxembourg Association for the Study of Competition Law (ALEDC) and the Luxembourg Association for Environmental Law (ALDE).

“The arrival of Benjamin Marthoz reflects the firm’s intention to continue developing our General Litigation and Administrative Litigation teams so as to provide even better support to our clients, as well as to the firm’s other practice areas, in matters and issues requiring sharp expertise in litigation and regulatory matters." Manou HOSS, Managing Partner
