

Arendt appoints Olivier Ramlot as Chief Information Officer

Arendt is pleased to announce that Olivier Ramlot has joined the firm as Chief Information Officer (CIO) as of 15 October 2025.

With extensive experience, notably as CIO of BIL, Olivier brings valuable expertise in technological transformation, information systems governance, and the management of complex projects. He was recently named CIO of the Year 2024 by IT Nation in recognition of his strategic leadership and commitment to innovation.

His mission will be to structure and lead the IT roadmap, support teams in evolving their practices, reinforce operational stability, and actively contribute to the digitalisation of Arendt's services.

Jean-Marc Ueberecken, Managing Partner at Arendt, commented: "Olivier's arrival marks an important milestone in our ambition to strengthen IT governance and accelerate our digital transformation. His strategic vision and ability to unite teams around a human and ambitious approach will be major assets for Arendt."

« I am honoured to join Arendt at such a pivotal moment in its digital journey. I look forward to working with the teams to strengthen the reliability and resilience of our systems and to accelerate digital transformation for the benefit of our clients, » said Olivier Ramlot.
